INTRODUCTION

Research conducted by the Commonwealth Bank of Australia (Commonwealth Bank) in partnership with Domestic Violence NSW (DVNSW) has found that financial abuse – a common, but often difficult to detect element of family violence – represents an area that goes unaddressed through a lack of education or access to resources.

This booklet has been designed for people who work with victims/survivors of family violence (FV) to help them identify and provide support for those experiencing financial abuse. In it you will find examples of financial abuse, strategies for recognising people who may be experiencing financial abuse, and direction to resources that may be helpful when assisting those impacted by financial abuse. We have also included a series of resources that workers can use when supporting those impacted by financial abuse. These are designed to provide guidance both for people currently in a financially abusive relationship, and for those who were in one previously and are now becoming financially independent.

In Tasmania, family violence includes a range of violent behaviours (referred to as 'conduct' in legislation), including:

- Assault, including sexual assault;
- Threats; coercion; intimidation;
- Verbal abuse;
- Abduction;
- Stalking; or an attempt to do any of those things.

Family violence is recognised as more than physical violence and also includes:

- Economic abuse;
- Emotional abuse;
- Intimidation;
- Breaching any existing orders relating to family violence; and
- Property damage.

The 'Family Violence Act 2004 (TAS) (The Act) defines family violence in Tasmania. For more information on the Act, visit: <https://www.legislation.tas.gov.au/view/html/inforce/2017-04-28/act-2004-067>.

ABOUT FINANCIAL ABUSE

WHAT IS FINANCIAL ABUSE?

Financial abuse (also called economic abuse) is a serious form of family violence that occurs when an abuser uses money as a means to gain power and to control their partner. Financial abuse is one of the most powerful ways an abuser can keep their partner trapped in an abusive relationship, and may also impact on that partner's ability to stay safe once they leave the relationship.

The specific methods by which an abuser exercises financial control over their partner can differ greatly, but can include instances where a person:

- Controls access to finances such as cash, bank accounts, benefits or pensions.
- Refuses to grant their partner access to sufficient funds.
- Refuses to allow their partner to view bills or financial statements.
- Co-opts a partner's wages to pay for all household expenses, while spending their own money only on themselves.
- Refuses to contribute financially to their partner or the family.
- Does things that cost their partner or the family money, such as coercing or forcing their partner into taking out loans, debts and/or credit cards in their name - including business debts.
- Stops their partner from working or studying, either by forbidding it or by sabotaging their work or employment opportunities.
- Forces their partner to work in a family business without being paid.
- Hides assets from their partner.
- Destroys, damages or steals their partner's property.

HOW COMMON IS IT?

Research has found close to 16 per cent of Australian women will experience financial abuse in their lifetime¹. Among women who seek support for domestic and family violence the incidence is much higher with up to 90 per cent of women affected by financial abuse². Financial abuse is also common in abusive lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, intersex and queer (LGBTIQ) relationships. Women with disabilities or long-term health conditions are significantly more likely than the general population to experience financial abuse¹.

Financial abuse affects people from all socio-economic and ethnic backgrounds, with or without children. Both men and women can be victims of financial abuse.

IDENTIFYING VICTIMS OF FINANCIAL ABUSE

Despite its prevalence, financial abuse can be difficult to recognise and identify because it is often hidden or minimised. Many people find it difficult to see that they are in a financially abusive relationship, and as with other forms of abuse, financial abuse may begin subtly and progress over time. Cultural backgrounds, family traditions, assumptions about relationships, societal expectations that couples will share their financial resources for the good of the family, and stereotypical gender roles can make some people feel that it is normal for their partner to control their financial affairs, spend their money and make all financial decisions. Socially, money is often seen as a private matter that is not discussed, which makes it even more difficult to detect.

Financial abuse can also involve complex family dynamics. For instance, in some cases, financial abuse can take place in the context of financial arrangements between families, where the abuse is perpetrated by a person's partner as well as the extended family, and where the abuse may extend to the family members. Financial abuse can occur in both wealthy and poor families and relationships. It is used as a way to elicit power and control.

For these reasons, it is common for people to feel embarrassed and overwhelmed when talking about financial abuse, and researchers have highlighted the difficulties women experience in identifying financial abuse and control and/or acknowledging it to themselves and others.

SIGNS OF FINANCIAL ABUSE INCLUDE A PARTNER:

KEEPING THEIR FINANCIAL AFFAIRS OR THE FINANCIAL AFFAIRS OF THE FAMILY A SECRET

EXCLUDING THEIR PARTNER FROM OR IGNORING THEIR OPINION ON MAJOR FINANCIAL DECISIONS

REFUSING TO PAY FOR CHILD SUPPORT OR HELP WITH CHILDCARE

MAKING THEIR PARTNER PUT ALL THEIR INCOME INTO A JOINT ACCOUNT OR THEIR OWN BANK ACCOUNT

USING THEIR PARTNER'S NAME TO TAKE OUT CREDIT CARDS OR LOANS

PUTTING ALL ASSETS UNDER A FAMILY TRUST AND PROHIBITING ANY PRIVATE INCOME

REFUSING TO CONTRIBUTE TO HOUSEHOLD EXPENSES

TAKING STEPS TO PREVENT THEIR PARTNER FROM WORKING OR STUDYING

STEALING MONEY FROM THEIR PARTNER

DENYING MONEY BEING SENT TO THEIR PARTNER'S FAMILY (OR SENDING THEIR PARTNER'S MONEY TO THEIR OWN FAMILY) IN THEIR COUNTRY OF ORIGIN

INSISTING THEIR PARTNER SHOWS ALL THEIR RECEIPTS FROM SHOPPING

REFUSING TO PUT THEIR PARTNER'S NAME ON THE PROPERTY TITLE

WORKER RESOURCES

INTRODUCTION

The following resources are intended to support workers working with victims/survivors affected by financial abuse. Financial abuse can manifest in many ways, but there are steps that most people can take to protect their finances and to plan for their financial futures. The first section, Protecting Finances provides resources to help them take control of their finances after financial abuse. This process can be overwhelming, so these resources are designed to break this process into manageable steps. They can be used by workers working with clients planning to leave or who have left a financially abusive relationship, who need to protect themselves from financial abuse, or who are establishing or re-establishing financial independence.

The second section, Achieving Financial Independence contains activities that may be useful for clients who have left a financially abusive relationship and are establishing or re-establishing their financial independence. These activities are designed to be resources to help people get back on their feet and build their financial confidence. It includes information on budgeting, paying bills and saving. The activities all include a face-to-face component that is designed to be 30 minutes in length to allow for adequate time to introduce the concepts that they cover, but not so much that it takes away from time spent addressing other important issues.

Once the face-to-face component of each section is complete, the resources include activities for a client to complete at home. If feasible, each meeting with the worker is intended to be a week apart to ensure enough time to complete the self-driven aspects and reflect on the learnings before progressing to the next section.

The components of each section within this Activity Book are outlined below:

- A summary of the section and the intended outcome.
- Estimated time (where applicable) and materials required.
- Instructions for both the face-to-face and self-driven requirements.
- Copies of the related worksheets.

SECTION ONE: PROTECTING FINANCES

BEFORE LEAVING A RELATIONSHIP

If you decide to leave an abusive relationship, there are things that you can do before you make your intention to leave known to your partner. To help secure finances for the future the following may be useful:

Having an email account that your partner is not aware of, is an important step to receiving communication from financial, and other, institutions that can be kept private. This email account should not be created on a device that the perpetrator has access to.

ACTION: OPEN A BANK ACCOUNT IN YOUR NAME ONLY

CHECKLIST

- If safe to do so, open a new bank account online or contact a local bank branch to enquire about setting up a new account.
- If it is safe to do so, transfer any monies into this new account.
- Request the bank send any correspondence to your email or other safe address.

INFORMATION AND RESOURCES

Opening an account with a bank where you are already a customer: Typically, if you are already a customer of a bank, you will not need to provide as much identification to open an account. Call your bank, apply online, or visit the local branch to set up the new account.

If opening an account with a new bank: Make sure you have adequate ID. Appropriate identification includes an Australian passport or an Australian or New Zealand driver's license. If you've changed your name after getting married, you may also need to provide a marriage certificate to verify this. Depending on the bank you choose, you may need to visit the branch in person to verify you are who you say you are. When opening a bank account as a new customer, you must provide certain documents to verify your identity. In the case of the Commonwealth Bank, where this is not possible the Bank will do its best to work with a customer using alternative methods to verify the customer's identity.

Acceptable identity documents include:

- Either a passport or Australian or New Zealand driver's licence (which must be current).

OR Two items from this list:

- Australian or foreign birth certificate or extract
- Australian or foreign citizenship certificate
- Centrelink pension or health card

OR One item from the non-photographic documents listed above AND one from the following list (i.e. total two items):

- A notice from the Commonwealth/state or territory issued to the person and containing their name and residential address
- Australian Tax Office (ATO) notice containing name and residential address
- A utilities notice from a local government body or utility provider showing name and residential address, and indicates provision of services to that person
- Overseas driver's licence

Continued...

If you can, it is also helpful to give the bank your tax file number. If you don't, any interest your account earns will be taxed by your financial institution.

SECTION TWO: ACHIEVING FINANCIAL INDEPENDENCE

This section is intended to be used only once financial abuse has begun to be addressed. Its purpose is to support financial independence through offering activities that:

- Examine your bills and anticipate when and how to pay them
- Bring awareness to your spending as an individual/household and aim to control this as much as possible
- Assist with planning for future expenses through saving

The activities refer to worksheets which are interspersed through the following pages.

SPENDING

SUMMARY

This activity asks you to track your spending over one or two weeks with your entire household to reflect on spending habits. This will later be used as a basis for a budget.
We recognise that not all families reside in a household and not all households are families.

TIME ESTIMATE

30 minutes total +
1-2 weeks of tracking spending

MATERIALS CHECKLIST

- 'Spend Tracking' worksheet

Instructions

Find the 'Spend Tracking' worksheet. Over the next one or two weeks, track all of the money you and your household spends. Start with any money you might have spent today by writing down the costs under today's column.

Alternatively, use a free mobile app from ASIC's Money Smart to track your spending on the go.

Visit: www.moneysmart.gov.au/tools-and-resources/calculators-and-apps/mobile-apps/trackmyspend.

When you go back home, show this worksheet to your household members and ask that at the end of every day everyone discusses and records what they have spent money on that day. It will help to keep receipts for the week.

If there are children in the household they should be encouraged to help add up the daily numbers, check receipts and hear how much daily expenses cost, even if they don't spend money themselves. This will help teach them the value of money.

Discuss with your household or family:

- Was your spending what you expected?
- Are you satisfied with your spending, or is there room to find more savings?
- Which categories were most surprising in terms of how much you spent?

PAYING BILLS/UTILITIES

SUMMARY

This activity aims to raise awareness of your bills and how to not only plan for them but how to pay them on time as well.

TIME ESTIMATE

30 - 40 minutes

MATERIALS CHECKLIST

- 'Calculating Bills' worksheet
- 'Bill Payment' handout

Pre-work

Collect all of your bills and contracts in one place, if they are online save them all in one place. Determine exactly how many different services you are billed for, don't miss anything out. Common bills are: rent, electricity/gas, internet, phone, any subscription services.

Instructions

Use the 'Bills Calculator' worksheet.

Alternatively use an online budget calculator, like the MoneySmart Budget Planner to do the calculations for you. www.moneysmart.gov.au/tools-and-resources/calculators-and-apps/budget-planner.

The worksheet is split up into different frequencies we might pay certain bills. Using the bills you have collected, as well as research done into possible future costs, write down each of the bill types in the corresponding frequency, eg. If gas is $120 and paid every three months, enter it in the 'quarterly' section provided.

The table should be completed to ensure that every bill is entered into the correct frequency, it includes an amount (rounded up where possible) and then calculated to give a total using the formulae provided. This is your yearly amount/per bill.

Once all bills have been accounted for, total the yearly amounts and divide by the number of pay cycles in a year, eg. If paid fortnightly, divide the total by 26.

This amount should be incorporated into the budget you create in the next activity. As with the separate savings account and automatic payments into it, the same can be set up for bills if desired.

Use the 'Paying bills' handout to discuss and determine with your worker the best method to pay each of your bills if you are currently unsure. Consider which methods will be easiest for you and whether or not some methods cost more than others.

Note the payment method down in the legend and ensure you keep this handout somewhere noticeable in your home. Use the calendar of your phone, or an online e-mail attached calendar to send reminders for any un-automated bills at least two days before they are due. This will ensure you won't be charged with late payment fees.

BUDGETING

SUMMARY

This activity asks you to create a budget based on your previous spend tracking. We recognise that not all families reside in a household and not all households are families.

TIME ESTIMATE

30 minutes total

MATERIALS CHECKLIST

'Creating a Budget' worksheet

Instructions

Now that you know how much you actually spend and what bills you need to pay, use the 'Creating a Budget' worksheet to set a budget for the next three weeks by allocating a limited amount to spend for each category.

Again, MoneySmart has a free, online Budget Planner that makes budget calculations easy. Visit www.moneysmart.gov.au/tools-and-resources/calculators-and-apps/budget-planner.

Discuss the budget with your household or family, so they know what the limits are and agree that they're realistic. Challenge them to stick with it and check in with them at the end of each day.

Consider agreeing to use the savings on something your household can do together or will share, like eating out together for a meal.

SAVINGS

SUMMARY

This activity helps to identify a savings goal and calculate how much you will need to regularly contribute to achieve it.

TIME ESTIMATE

30 - 40 minutes

MATERIALS CHECKLIST

'Savings Goal' worksheet.

Instructions

Refer to the 'Savings Goal' worksheet.

Think about something you would like to save for in the short-to-mid-term. If you don't have an item in mind, think of a reasonable amount of money you would like to have saved up for security.

It's important to reach your first savings goal rather than to have an ambitious goal, because this will get you in the practice of saving.

Write down the goal and the exact amount it costs. Use the internet to find an exact cost if needed.

Think of a realistic date to achieve the goal by. It should be anywhere from a few weeks to a year, otherwise change your goal to something smaller.

Take the cost of the goal and divide it by the number of payment cycles between today and the nominated date. This is the amount that must be saved to get to that goal.

Check if this amount can be accommodated by your budget from the previous activity. If not, you must change the date, change your goal, or change your budget. Discuss each of these ideas with your worker to find what the most realistic solution is.

Once you have settled on an amount to be saved, this should be put in an account that is separate to your everyday transaction account. Contact your bank to assist in setting up a savings account up if one is not already in place.

Transfer your savings into this account, every single time you receive a payment. You may want to set up an automatic transfer instead.

Keep a reminder of your goal somewhere you can reflect on it often, whether an image in your wallet, or sticking your worksheet to the fridge. This will remind you of the purpose to your savings.

Over the coming weeks and months let your worker know how you are progressing with your goal. If you fall behind let them know and re-calculate your savings, budget or date so that you can still achieve your goal.
